BRYAN SAYS SCHEDULE CALLED FOR NOMINATION OF A GOLD PLATED SERVANT OF WALL STREET

CLERKS TO WORK AS USUAL UNTIL CONGRESS ACTS

Possible Exception Is At

EMERGENCY ACTION EXPECTED PROMPTLY

Cabinet Takes Up Matter and President Will Prepare Circular Letter.

The thousands of employees of the United States Government whose pay threatened to be stopped Saturday night, the end of the current fiscal year, because there is no money available at this time to pay salaries, will report for work Monday morning, and will remain there until Congress takes emergency action.

There is a possible exception in the case of 3,500 employees of the Navy Yard, and 4,000 workers in the Government Printing Office.

The dangerous condition which threatened to bring to a dead standstill the wheels of the entire Government, has been relieved, temporarily, at least. President Taft is preparing an assurance that he personally will be responsible for keeping all branches of the Government open on Monday and until such time as Congress comes to the assistance of the thousands of employees.

Discussed By Cabinet.

At a meeting of the Cabinet this morning, the question of permitting the thousands of Government employees to continue their work when they have no assurance that they will receive pay for it, was threshed out. The statute which prohibits any department from authorizing men to engage in work when there is no provision for paying them, for this, was pondered over.

Regarding the operation of the Government Monday, it was the consensus of opinion at the White House conference, first, that no branches of the Government need suspend; second, that there will be pay from future appropriations for Monday's work; and, third, that every branch of the Government should be kept open.

Chairman of the Appropriations Committee in both branches of Congress gave assurance that when Congress convenes Monday afternoon, resolutions continuing the 1912 appropriations for the month of July, will be adopted.

No Official Opinion.

Comptroller Tracewell, of the Treasury Department, the Government's authority on questions of wages and salaries, has declined thus far to express officially an opinion as to the legality of permitting the Government employees to continue their work until Congress provides pay for them. It is known, however, that he believes it legally can be done, and he has privately so informed heads of Government departments.

Congressman Fitzgerald, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, now in Baltimore attending the Democratic convention, has pledged himself to take favorable action on the measure when it comes up in Congress Monday.

Majority Leader Underwood, of the House in Washington today, reiterated his declaration that the matter will receive his support, and he promises speedy action.

Senator Warren's office at the Capitol this afternoon issued a statement in which new assurance that the resolution, when it reaches the Senate Appropriations Committee, of which Mr. Warren is chairman, it will receive his endorsement. The quickest possible action will be reached.

At any hour this afternoon or tonight Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop is expected to countermand the "stop work" order which threatened for a

UNDERWOOD THINKS ANY ONE MAY WIN BALTIMORE FIGHT

Speaker Clark Declines to Discuss First Ballot
In Convention.

"It looks like anybody's fight," said Congressman Underwood today. "I can't say anything about the situation in detail, for I do not know, but on the surface, at least, there seems to be a chance for almost any of the candidates."

Speaker Clark declined to discuss the results of the first ballot at the Baltimore convention.

"I have nothing to say, and shall have nothing to say until it is all over," said the Speaker.

Mr. Clark was asked if the voting for Harmon by the New York delegation was a surprise to him, but he would not discuss this nor other aspects of the first ballot.

The Speaker looked tired this morning. He had stayed up until about 2 a. m. waiting for news from Baltimore, and he was back at his office again at a comparatively early hour.

Office attaches of the Speaker were not so cheerful and enthusiastic today about Mr. Clark's prospects at Baltimore as they have been. Callers were comparatively few in number, for most persons from various parts of the country interested in the result are in Baltimore.

Judge Edward Doocy, an Illinois delegate, brought the Speaker a word of cheer. He came to call with his brother, James W. Doocy, twenty-three years in the Government Printing Office here.

"I believe that Mr. Clark will win out all right," said Judge Doocy, who comes from Pike county, Ill., which is across the river from Pike county, Mo., in the Speaker's district.

Even at this late hour many requests for admission tickets to the convention are coming to the Speaker's office, signed one of the clerks in the office.

"Miss Clark got one of these, her brother, another, and Mr. Bassford, the Speaker's secretary, the third. There has been none to give any other persons."

Japanese Cruiser
Hits Rock, Crew Safe

TOKYO, June 28.—The armored cruiser Naniwa today ran upon a rock off the island of Urup. It was reported that the crew was safe, but it was impossible to estimate the full damage to the cruiser until a thorough inspection could be made.

Congressman Post Better.

It was reported at Providence Hospital this morning that Congressman James L. Post, who has been confined there with acute indigestion, is still recovering rapidly and should be able to leave the hospital early next week.

Telling Shots Fired by Bryan Today

Belmont and Ryan have been plowing with our heifer. They have been employing the methods usually resorted to by the predatory interests.

There is nothing more timid than a politician except two politicians. The ratio of moral courage in the plain everyday voter as compared with the courage of the average delegate to a national convention is about 16 to 1.

Taggart and Roger Sullivan do not owe me anything unless it be a grudge.

An ancient proverb says "No one need be a slave who has learned how to die." The trouble with some men is they do not believe in a resurrection.

Declares That the Introduction by Him Of a Moral Issue Upset the Conven- tion But Resulted in the Estab- lishment of Definite Oppo- sition to Plunderbund.

By W. J. BRYAN.

BALTIMORE, June 28.—It was a surgical operation and it was possibly a mistake not to have administered chloroform, but I did not expect quite so much tumult. Strange what a consternation can be brought into a political convention by the introduction of a moral issue.

If I had offered a resolution declaring that all Republicans are rascals and all Democrats angels, and pledging the Democratic party to give the people a perfect government, Boss Murphy would have seconded the motion. Ryan and Belmont would have shouted themselves hoarse, and Flood would have declared that I was as good as a Virginia Democrat.

But when I called the country's attention to the fact that we had in the convention two men who are politically sexless, who have no God but money, and who do not hesitate to use political power for their own enrichment, I at once became a disturber of peace and an enemy of the Democratic party.

"Conscience Makes Cowards of Us All"

If my conduct was so reprehensible, if my resolution was offensive, if I was injuring the chances of the Democratic party by introducing it, why did Virginia cast 23½ votes for it and only ½ vote against it? If former Governor McCorkle represented West Virginia in the speech that he made, why did he not get more than three votes against it in his delegation? If I was jeopardizing the interests of our party, why did Florida give three-fourths of her votes to the resolution?

Why did poor Alabama have to get out of the trap by changing her vote? She came first on the roll and, supposing by the speeches made that the resolution was going to be opposed, she started out boldly against it, and after that it snowed. Why did not the New York men who hissed and hooted at the resolution have the courage to vote against it? Shakespeare explained it: "It is conscience that makes cowards of us all."

Belmont and Ryan have been plowing with our heifer. They have been employing the methods usually resorted to by the predatory interests, and the men whom they were leading astray were protesting that they were just as progressive as anybody. They were insisting that their objection to Mr. Bryan was a personal objection. They were "tired of him," opposed to his dictation.

Would Have Gone Home to Work for Taft

If things had run along smoothly these men would have helped to nominate a gold-plated servant of Wall Street and then gone home to help elect Taft. But things did not run along smoothly, and hence a scene that it would be difficult to describe. Looking down from the stage I saw a confusion that I never witnessed before in a convention. The delegate section was like a great boiling spring. Men were shaking their fists at each other, some shouting anathemas at anyone who would dare to uncover them, and others clamoring to be counted in favor of the resolution.

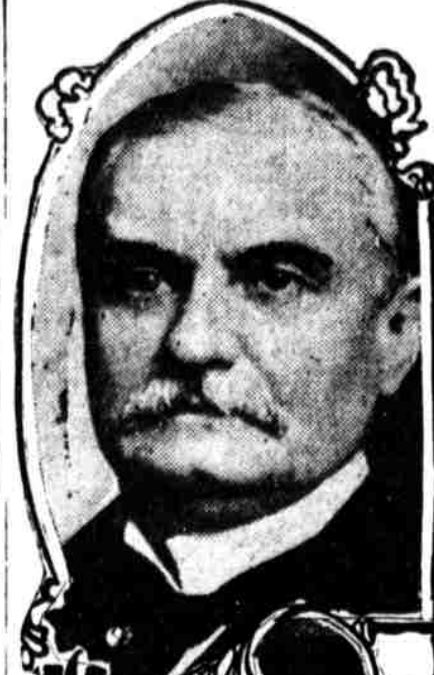

There is nothing more timid than a politician except two politicians. The ratio of moral courage in the plain, every-day voter as compared with the courage of the average delegate to a national convention is about 16 to 1. If a national convention could assemble and do its work and then take a recess for a month and allow the final action to be taken after the delegates had returned from a visit home, our conventions would come much nearer representing the people. I would not advise that, however, in the present case, for fear some of the delegates might not be able to get back.

But the convention has done one thing, if nothing else: It has committed a great party more openly to opposition to the plunderbund than any great party was ever committed before by a national convention.

Political life has both its trials and its rewards. The greatest trial aside from absence from home and physical strain, is the alienation of friends, not personal, but political.

Every new issue brings a new alignment, and men who have associated with others politically find that they must separate. Such separations, however, ought not to affect

PENNSYLVANIA MEN HAVE CONFERENCE WITH ROOSEVELT

Details of August Convention Are Being Settled
Today.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 28.—Colonel Roosevelt was ready for a conference this afternoon, at Sagamore Hill, with E. A. Van Valkenberg, of Philadelphia; William Flinn, of Pittsburgh; George W. Perkins, and several other progressive leaders.

Perkins last night visited Oyster Bay and made arrangements for a meeting, at which it is expected further details of the proposed August convention will be settled.

Friday usually is the colonel's second day each week at the Outlook office, in New York, but he did not go there today, announcing that hereafter, at least through the summer, he would go to his New York office only once a week, on Tuesdays.

Instead of his usual horseback ride, Colonel Roosevelt took his exercise this morning by playing tennis with his sons, Archie and Quentin, planning a row on the bay with Mrs. Roosevelt for the afternoon.

Visitor Is Robbed By His Companion

Robbed by his traveling companion, Lou Lohrstein, of New York, complained to the police today that he had been relieved of $50 in cash by his erstwhile friend while he was sleeping in a room at a hotel on North Capitol street.

Lohrstein said he and a friend were on their way South, and decided to stop off in Washington.

When he awoke this morning he found that the man had taken "French leave" during the night, and later he discovered his money was missing.

Half of Committee Are Out for Roosevelt

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 28.—At a meeting of the Republican committee of Louisville, twenty-three of the forty-three members resigned after adopting resolutions bitterly condemning the Chicago convention, President Taft, and Senator Bradley and declaring themselves for Roosevelt for President.

Two Are Killed.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 28.—Two persons were killed and four seriously injured early today in a fire that destroyed a West Market street apartment building.

FIRST BALLOT HAS LITTLE MEANING

Clark Men Sure Speaker Will Win
On Second or Third Ballot.

By J. C. WELLIVER.

BALTIMORE, June 28.—The time for prophecy and forecasting is past. Even analysis of the first ballot taken in the sleepy hours of the early morning is dangerous business, for it involves elements of prophecy. And guesses are coppered and qualified, save only those that represent claims of managers and the assurances of boosters who want to encourage the belief that their favorites are certain to win.

Clark 200 Short.

You can hear anything you like, and everything you don't like. There is positive assurance that New York will plunk its ninety votes to Clark on the second ballot, and will make the determined effort to stampede the convention to him. This much is probably true. But if the ninety votes of New York be added to the 440½ that Clark got on the early morning vote, he is still left 200 short of nominating strength. Whence is it to come?

If you want Underwood to win, look up the Alabama delegation and list to the positive assurance that Underwood will get New York and Illinois after the second ballot, and that they will stay with him for several ballots, and draw in all the rest of the Harmon, muck of the Clark, and a sprinkling of the Wilson votes, and nominate the Alabama man.

Puts O. K. On Underwood.

They will add that Bryan has sent word to Charles F. Murphy that he is willing to stand for Underwood; that he has no assurances to give concerning his own regularity during the campaign unless a candidate is named whom he is willing to accept. Underwood, it is declared, is one of these.

Perhaps it is true. The Nebraskan has been put in a hard position. He has had a nasty quarrel with Underwood, and not many moons ago was denouncing the Ways and Means chairman in bitter terms. At that time Bryan was regarded as a Clark supporter. He is even now an instructed Clark delegate from Nebraska. But Clark has disappointed him grievously. The appearance of a Clark coalition with the bosses and the interests has added to the difficulty of Bryan's position. More than this, a long row of knickers have been carrying to Bryan specifications about the conduct and attitudes of the Speaker in matters of legislation.

Charges Against Clark.

"These stories have hurt. There is no doubt of it. Clark is charged with having been a trimmer all through the current session of Congress. Bryan has been told that Clark has submitted to the pigeonholing of the measure looking to State control of liquor transportation in interstate commerce, after they arrived within the State to which they are destined. He has looked into the story, and is not all pleased with it. There has been circulated, with specification and detail, a corollary allegation that the liquor interests are all for Clark, and that the suppression of this legislation was part of the consideration of their support.
